

BACKLIGHT MODULE

Abstract

A backlight module comprises an assembly of a rear substrate and a front substrate. A hermetic discharge gap is formed there between and mounted with power electrodes. The backlight module further comprises a discharge gas filled in the discharge gap and a plurality of fluorescent layers of different color emissions disposed on a surface of the assembly of the rear substrate and front substrate. The discharge gas is discharged by the power electrodes.